Two men in dark jackets and light-colored trousers are standing in the aisle, looking towards the stall. One man is slightly behind the other, and they appear to be engaged in a conversation or observing the produce.

A large wooden crate is overflowing with bright red, round tomatoes. The tomatoes are piled high, filling the left side of the stall's main display area.

The central and right portions of the stall are filled with various types of leafy greens. There are several crates of green leaf lettuce, some dark purple varieties, and other fresh herbs. The produce is neatly arranged and looks very fresh.

A row of wooden crates holds several bottles of olive oil. The bottles are clear with dark liquid inside and have simple labels. They are arranged in a neat line across the middle of the stall.

Several packages of 'DULZE' brand produce are visible. The packages are clear plastic with red and green accents, and the brand name 'DULZE' is printed in bold letters. They appear to contain small, round items like cherry tomatoes.

Two pieces of light-colored paper or parchment are tucked into the front of the wooden crate, likely containing price lists or product information for the stall.

A white plastic bag is hanging from the front of the wooden crate. The bag is crumpled and appears to be a sample or a discarded item.

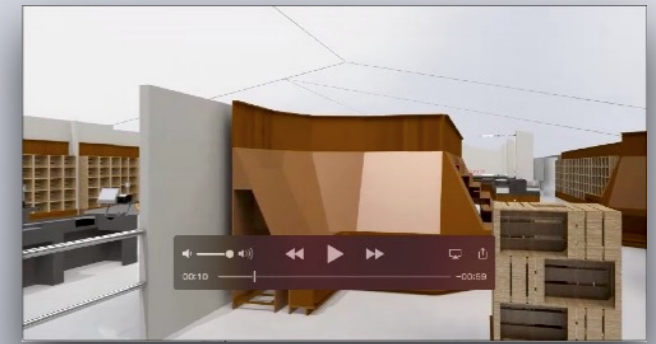

A roll of clear plastic wrap is tucked into the front of the wooden crate, ready for use by customers to wrap their purchases.

A white plastic bag is hanging from the right side of the wooden crate, similar to the one on the left.
